

Madero Shot On Way To Prison; U. S. Troops Are Ready For Work

PRESIDENT AND VICE PRESIDENT OF MEXICO SHOT BY ESCORT.

PUBLIC DOUBT; OFFICIAL STORY

Recalls the Killing of Gustavo Under "Fugitive Law"—Bodies Hidden.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The state department received a dispatch from Ambassador Wilson stating that Francisco de la Barra, the Mexican minister of foreign affairs, had invited all foreign diplomats in Mexico City to take luncheon with him today. The ambassador stated, however, that none of the diplomats would accept the invitation unless the mystery surrounding the tragic death of Madero and Suarez was fully explained.

City of Mexico, Feb. 24.—Francisco I. Madero, former president of Mexico, and Josephino Suarez, who served as vice-president until the overthrow of the Madero regime, were shot and killed while being taken from the National palace to the penitentiary here.

Investigation Is Ordered. An official investigation has been ordered to determine the responsibility, and solemn promises have been made that the guilty will be punished.

Not unnaturally, a great part of the public regards the official versions with doubt, having in mind the use for centuries of the notorious "Ley fuga," the unwritten law which is invoked when the death of a prisoner is desired. After its application there is written on the records, "Prisoner shot trying to escape."

Senora Madero, widow of the ex-president, received the first definite information of his death from the Spanish minister, Senor Cologan y Cologan.

She already had heard reports that something unusual and serious had happened, but friends had endeavored up to that time to prevent her from learning the whole truth.

Soon afterward, accompanied by his brother, Jose Perez, and Mercedes Madero, a sister of Francisco, Senora Madero drove to the penitentiary, but was refused permission to see the body of her husband. Senora Suarez also was denied admittance to the mortuary, where physicians, in accordance with the law were performing an autopsy.

Madero's Sister Accuses.

In contrast to the widow, whose grief was of a pitifully silent character, expressed in sobs, Mercedes Madero, a beautiful young woman, educated in Paris, who has been a brilliant leader of society since the revolution of 1910, was dry-eyed and tigerish in her emotions. By the side of the two women whose husbands had been killed, the girl hurled accusations at the officers who barred the entrance.

"Cowards! Assassins!" she called them, her voice pitched high. The officers stared impassively.

"You! The men who fired on a defenseless man! You and your superior officers are traitors!"

No effort was made to remove the women, nor did the officers attempt to silence them. Senora Madero continued weeping and the girl did not cease her hysterical tirade until the arrival of the Spanish minister and the Japanese charge, who came to offer their services.

The minister spoke with the officers in charge, but was told on account of the autopsy it would be impossible for any one to see the bodies. Later in the day, they said, the request would be complied with.

Women Taken Away.

The diplomats then conducted the women away from the penitentiary.

Madero's father and Rafael Hernandez, former minister of the interior, and other friends, made efforts early in the day to recover the bodies, and it was stated this afternoon that the American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, had interested himself and secured the promises of Minister de la Barra that the bodies should be delivered to their families for burial.

The tragedy occurred shortly after midnight. Madero and Suarez, who had been prisoners in the national palace since their arrest on Tuesday last, were placed in an automobile, which was accompanied by another car and escorted by 100 rurales under the orders of Commandant Francisco Cardenas and Col. Rafael Pimlenko.

With instructions not to outdistance the escort, the cars moved slowly. No incident occurred until they reached a point near the penitentiary, where, in an open place, the guards' attention was attracted, according to the official version, to a group of per-

TAFT DIRECTS THREE BRIGADES TO BE READY FOR SERVICE.

FIRM AGAINST INTERVENTION

Will Have the Troops Ready for Wilson if He Wants to Use Them.

Washington, Feb. 24.—"The assassination of Madero and Suarez does not in itself warrant any further move on the part of the United States government. No special cabinet meeting will be held in Washington to discuss the situation."—President William H. Taft.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Before President Taft leaves office there will be 17,000 troops concentrated at and about Galveston, Tex., in addition to 1,000 marines on warships anchored off Mexican ports and 2,000 marines held in reserve on the ships of the Atlantic fleet at the naval station, Guantanamo, Cuba.

This force of 20,000 men will be ready for whatever action Woodrow Wilson and the new congress may desire to take in the event of further developments in Mexico. President-elect Wilson will consult with the Taft cabinet on Mexican affairs next week.

Crisis Up to Wilson.

Two things made clear is that President Taft is about ready to turn the whole situation over to his successor in office. From the war department orders were issued for the Fifth brigade, second division, numbering 4,000 men, to entrain at once for Galveston.

This force is under direct command of Brigadier General Frederick F. Smith, whose division commander is Maj. Gen. William H. Carter, stationed at Chicago. Orders were also issued for the Fourth brigade of the second division, also numbering 4,000 men, including the Twenty-seventh infantry, stationed at Fort Sheridan, Ill., to prepare to entrain at an instant's notice for Galveston.

Taft Makes Statement. The second event which showed the intentions of the president was a statement which he issued in New York. He said:

"The movement of troops is merely to bring a brigade to Galveston, to which place four transports had already been ordered as a mere precautionary measure because of unsettled conditions in Mexico. It is not prompted by any recent news from Mexico, and is only part of the reasonable precaution directed to be taken some time ago, in which the sending of battleships to the various ports in Mexico was the first step. The sending of four transports and two brigades to Galveston is the next and final step."

This statement is construed to mean that before the end of the Taft regime the first brigade of the first division, numbering 4,000 men, commanded by Brig. Gen. Marion P. Maus, with headquarters at Albany, N. Y., which has been prepared for some time, will be sent to Galveston, as will the fourth brigade under command of Brig. Gen. Ramsay D. Potts.

Presents Sad Spectacle.

President Taft, speaking before the American Peace and Arbitration league in New York, showed clearly his position on Mexico was the same now as that maintained in messages to congress. He said:

"Mexico for two years has presented a very sad picture to every lover of his kind, to every supporter of popular government, to every man hopeful of establishing peace under a stable government. But we must not despair. We must not, in a case like Mexico—for it differs from the Central American republic—take such action as shall lead them to believe that we are moved by selfish purposes or arouse them to opposition to us.

Firm Against Intervention.

"We must avoid in every way that which is called intervention, and use all the patience possible, with the prayers that some power may arise there to bring about peace throughout that great country. We have to take precautions, and these have been taken.

"But I have no sympathy—none at all—and the charge of cowardice does not frighten me—with that which prompts us, for purposes of exploitation and gain, to invade another country and involve ourselves in a war the extent of which we could not realize, and the sacrifice of thousands of lives and millions of treasure—and then, when we had succeeded, what? No, we must exercise patience in a case like this."

Women Taken Away.

The diplomats then conducted the women away from the penitentiary.

Madero's father and Rafael Hernandez, former minister of the interior, and other friends, made efforts early in the day to recover the bodies, and it was stated this afternoon that the American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, had interested himself and secured the promises of Minister de la Barra that the bodies should be delivered to their families for burial.

The tragedy occurred shortly after midnight. Madero and Suarez, who had been prisoners in the national palace since their arrest on Tuesday last, were placed in an automobile, which was accompanied by another car and escorted by 100 rurales under the orders of Commandant Francisco Cardenas and Col. Rafael Pimlenko.

HIMERT SHOT BY "UNKNOWN HANDS"

THE CORONER'S JURY FAILS TO LEARN NEW INFORMATION IN MURDER.

STILL HOLD ORIGINAL THEORY

Officers Believe Oregon Man Was Shot by a Tramp in His Barn.

Oregon, Ill., Feb. 24.—Special to Telegraph—A jury, impanelled late Saturday by Coroner J. C. Akin of Forreston, in the inquest over the body of the late J. C. Himert, who was found dead in his barn Saturday morning with a bullet wound in his head, held that he came to his death by a gunshot wound fired "by hands unknown."

There have been no further developments in the case and the original theory is still held that Mr. Himert met his death at the hands of a tramp whom he tried to eject from his barn in the middle of the night.

The funeral of the deceased was held this afternoon at the Methodist church, Rev. W. L. Collin officiating. The various orders of which he was a member, the Masons, Odd Fellows, Woodmen and Mystic Workers, attended in a body.

MISTRIAL IN MIGHELL CASE; JURY RELEASED SATURDAY EVENING

AFTER DELIBERATING TWENTY-EIGHT HOURS JURORS REPORT DISAGREEMENT.

STOOD 7 TO 5 FOR ACQUITTAL

No Change in the First and Last Ballots—Judge Compliments Attorneys.

At 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening the jury in the Mighell manslaughter case reported to Judge Farrand that they were unable to agree as to the innocence or guilt of the accused, that they did not believe they would be able to reach a verdict if they remained in the jury room longer. Accordingly, after thanking them for their efforts, Judge Farrand discharged them, and the case is entered on the docket as a mistrial.

Seven for Acquittal.

From several of the jurors it was learned that they stood exactly the same on the last ballot they took Saturday night as they did on the first one Friday evening, seven standing out for acquittal and five sticking for conviction. Some time during Saturday one of the seven switched and voted with the jurors who stood for conviction, but only for a few ballots did he remain there, the ballots soon showing the familiar figures, seven to five.

Was Well Tried Case.

Before discharging the jurors Saturday evening Judge Farrand thanked them from the bench, and during his remarks he complimented Attorneys Edwards and Erwin for the manner in which they had prosecuted the case, stating that in all of his experience as a jurist he had never seen a case more thoroughly tried. Both attorneys used every possible point and every detail of the case was gone into completely.

Ira Mighell, the defendant, was present in court when the jurors reported that they could not agree and were discharged and he shook hands with each of them and with Judge Farrand, thanking each in turn for the spirit of fairness that was evident throughout the trial.

May Not Be Tried Again.

It is considered unlikely that the case will ever be called for trial again as this is the second time it has been heard in Lee county and the two trials have cost the county nearly $3,000. However, States Attorney Edwards would not state this morning whether or not he would ask to have the case called at the April term.

Story of the Case.

Ira Mighell was arrested Saturday evening, June 3, 1911, for the alleged slaying of Emory Kincaid on the Galena avenue bridge, following a fight between the two. He was held to the grand jury without bail on the following day by the coroner's jury.

The first trial of the case was started in the Lee county circuit court October 23, 1911, before Judge Farrand. On the 26th of that month the jury returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty of murder and fixing his punishment at 14 years in the penitentiary. Judge Farrand passed sentence No. 24 and five days later, on Nov. 29, Justice Cartwright of the Illinois supreme court, issued an order staying the sentence of the lower court and admitting Mighell to bail.

April 18, 1912, the supreme court reversed the case and remanded it, with the instructions that under the evidence the defendant could be guilty of nothing more than manslaughter. The second hearing, which resulted in a mistrial, was taken up a week ago today, going to the jury at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The jurors were out exactly 28 hours.

Bert Covert has resigned his position as trap drummer at the Family theatre and will hereafter play with the various dance orchestras of the city.

HYPEROPIA---
Far Sight

This is a very common error of refraction. It is sometimes called hypermetropia.

It is caused by the eyeball being too short—thus causing the rays of light to focus behind the retina.

Symptoms — blurring of vision when doing near work, such as reading, sewing, etc. Headaches generally frontal, less often occipital. Pain in the eyes, tenderness of the eyeball, red lids, etc.

A permanent relief comes from the wearing of properly adjusted glasses.

If you suffer from any of these symptoms see us about it.

Washington's Birthday Effects.
A North Dixon little girl, who had been much enthused over Washington's birthday exercises, while preparing for bed Sunday evening, was hurrying to 'beat' her more methodical little brother in retiring for the night. Everything went lovely, and she was undressed first, then dropping upon her knees to say the customary 'Now I lay me,' etc., she began: 'My Cuntry 'tis of—' Her prayer was stopped by shrieks of laughter from her brother, who had been an attentive listener to her words. She raised her head and after a comprehensive glance took in the situation, then ducked her head and went through the regulation prayer at a terrific clip, despite her brother's laughter, and hopped into bed with the knowledge that she was the victor, anyway.

Harmon, Feb. 24—Special—Early Sunday morning fire broke out in the McCarty cottage in the south part of town, occupied by W. C. Cowan, a local barber, and completely destroyed the house and all the furniture and clothing except a sewing machine and dresser.

The cause of the fire is supposed to have been a defective flue. Neighbors discovered the fire at about 3 a. m. and raised an alarm. Mrs. Mrs. Cowan was aroused, the ceiling of the living room fell with a crash.

The hose cart was taken to the burning house and connection was made to a hydrant close by. However the fire had gained too great headway and the house was a mass of smoke and flames.

It was a fortunate escape for both Mr. and Mrs. Cowan from being asphyxiated or burned. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

I CAN RELIEVE
Rheumatism, Heart Disease or Kidney Trouble

In 3 Days With My Neuropathic Treatment. Will Give Services Free To Prove It.

AT THE NACHUSA HOUSE UNTIL WEDNESDAY EVENING FEB. 26

There are hundreds of people who are suffering with either acute or chronic rheumatism in some form, neuralgia, sick headache, uric acid troubles. There are hundreds of people suffering with weakness or disease of the heart. Ninety per cent of these people have no organic disease, but just a functional trouble; yet, if it is left alone, it will produce organic disease and early death. Palpitation, shortness of breath, irritated heart action, intermittent pulse, dizzy spells, pain around the heart, fainting spells, bad circulation, cold hands and feet—all these symptoms indicate a weak heart and weak circulation through it. There are thousands of people suffering with weakness or disease of the kidneys. They go on, allowing it to gradually grow worse, allowing the kidneys to be clogged up, allowing them to become congested and inflamed and finally the little tubules are destroyed completely, producing Bright's disease and death, because the poisons and the waste matter that should be thrown off of the system through the kidneys is absorbed back into the blood, producing a slow form of poison that destroys nerves, muscles and vitality. In the early stages of kidney troubles, it may only show by an irritated bladder, burning, or backache, or simply weakness. But whenever this organ is not acting normally, you should have it treated immediately because it is sure death if you don't stop it. The kidney is the sewer of the body and must be kept open.

I call especial attention to these diseases for the reason that my Neuropathic system of treatment has a quicker effect on such diseases as these than many others. It acts quickly on the nervous system, circulation of blood, kidneys, bowels, liver and skin. I can give almost immediate relief to almost every case of this kind and give a complete, positive cure, if the patient will follow my advice and my treatment a reasonable time. My Neuropathic system cleanses and purifies the blood. It relieves the weakness and congestion about the heart, relieves the pressure in the small capillary blood vessels, so that the blood, when it leaves the heart, can go out naturally into the muscles, nerves, and extremities; and when that commences, in every case the disease deposit rapidly absorbs and disappears. I want every one suffering with these three diseases to call on me this trip. I will make a complete examination of the kidneys, of the heart, and tell you exactly the condition you are in, and if the disease has not gone too far, I will give you almost immediate relief and a complete cure. To prove this, I will give my services free to every person that calls on me this trip. I want to give you no excuse to go ahead and suffer with these diseases. There is no reason why you should suffer day in and day out with every change of weather with rheumatism. It can be cured absolutely. There is no excuse for you to quietly sit down and allow your weakness and disease of the heart and the kidneys to gradually grow worse and to become an organic disease, when you know it is going to kill you. When you know if you wait too long, until the internal tissues of this organ are destroyed, nothing else can be done. My Neuropathic system of treatment has the most immediate effect on these cases. I want to prove it to you. All I ask of you is to come and see me. You cannot refuse this offer. You owe it to yourself and family and to this new scientific treatment to call on me and let me examine and explain all these things. Remember, I treat all chronic weakness and disease, no matter of what origin. My Neuropathic system of treatment has given relief in thousands of cases when all others failed. I use no strong poisonous medicines. There is combination of treatment, both internal and local. You have never used anything like it. I want to explain this to every man, woman or child suffering with any chronic disease, weakness, on this trip. Come early, it may be necessary to see you two or three times, especially if your case is severe and chronic. Remember, I treat no case by mail. I must make a complete examination of the case first. I do this for you free of charge on this trip. I will remain at the Nachusa House until Wednesday night, Feb. 26.

One week from tomorrow and President William Howard Taft will become Prof. W. H. Taft.

Dramatic Notes

AN OPERETTA OF

EXQUISITE MELODY

'The Spring Maid,' that charming opera of fascinating melodies and laughing situations, to which the entire nation has paid tribute in over 1000 performances, is announced for an engagement at the opera house on Thursday, Feb. 27.

This opera furnishes a picture of sparkling life and beauty that irresistibly charms and amuses. Scenes from gay Carlsbad with the mischief-making Spring Girls and the doughty officers, together with the merry humor of a strolling band of players, are shown in each act.

Romance and melody are intertwined in the story of the Spring Girl in a manner so interesting as to hold the sure attention of the hearers during the entire performance. The enduring quality of 'The Spring Maid' is due as much to the pretty plot as to its melodies.

Of almost equal importance with the story and the delicious music is the scenic investiture. Werba and Luescher have furnished so lavishly. The scene at Carlsbad Springs offers brilliant and gay costumes. There is a panoramic view of the village in the first act, followed by the colorful peasant fete at Bitterbrunnen in the second act, which also includes the forest scene where springing fountains and flirting elves mingle with the human love-makers. Ever since the first performance in America, the stage pictures at this opera have been

FINE ARTS—CHICAGO

'Hindle Wakes,' the English success by Stanley Houghton which took London by storm and was not accepted by New York as a success has been approved by Chicago so emphatically that its stay at the Fine Arts theatre has been extended two weeks. Chicago society, managers of the theatre, and Wm. A. Brady who brought the play to America, were forced by the patronage and demand for seats to change their plans and arrange for another fortnight of the play. No dramatic offering in years has been so generally praised by all of Chicago's critics and the officers of the Chicago Theatre society are patting themselves on their backs because of their good fortune in securing the play. The work of the members of the company as well as the workmanship of the author, are credited for the big success. The characterization of the Lancashire people who figure in the play is called a joy, and the appeal of the performance to those who just want an evening's enjoyment is keen. The acting of Herbert Lomas, Whitford Kane, Emelie Polini, Alice O'Dea, Roland Young, Ada Barton, Robert Forsyth, Kathleen McPherson and Lillian Tweed, members of the company, is representative of the work of Miss Horniman's Repertory company of Manchester.

The story of 'Hindle Wakes' is a story of traditions and prejudices of the cotton weaving district of Lancashire mingled with a touch of the new viewpoint of the double sex standard of morality. It is a plea for individuality, regardless of sex, and is a graphic portrayal of the idea, rather startling to the older theories, that when a young man and a young girl go wrong it does not necessarily follow that the life of either must be ruined.

AMBOY HAD NO LIGHTS FRIDAY NIGHT

STREET CARS WERE ALSO OUT OF COMMISSION BECAUSE OF THE STORM.

Amboy, Feb. 22—Miss Mary Roat came out from Chicago for a visit with her parents, Mrs. and Mrs. John Roat.

The cars on the electric line from here to Lee Center and beyond did not run on account of the weather conditions.

Rev. Frederick Kempster, pastor of the Congregational church at Lee Center, was operated upon at the Amboy hospital this week for appendicitis. Dr. Frank Dornblaser performed the operation which was very successful and the patient is resting easily.

C. P. Miller and wife have returned from an extended visit with relatives at Champaign.

Mrs. Frank Merrill and daughter Violet plan to leave for Iowa soon, to visit the former's sister for some time. Mrs. Merrill's health has been very poor and a change and rest will doubtless benefit her.

Much damage was done to wires Friday and Saturday and considerable damage and hard work seem to be in store for the telephone and electric light companies.

Amboy is essentially an agricultural community and yet, until recently no attempt has been made to instruct the children in our schools in this subject in which we are all most interested. The school authorities are so handicapped that they find it impossible to do such a grade of work in this line, as will make a course in agriculture popular. When our people get to see this question in its true light, ways and means will be provided for training in that subject.

Amboy was almost in total darkness Friday evening, the electricity being off all over town. Those who had kerosene lamps were fortunate. Indeed as they seemed better than no light at all.

Will Eddy, who is a patient at the Amboy hospital, is getting along very nicely since his recent operation.

The postoffice was closed a part of Saturday on account of its being a legal holiday.

How to Make CALUMET Biscuit

To see how delightful baking can be, get a can of Calumet Baking Powder—and try this delicious recipe:

Calumet Biscuit.
1 heaping teaspoonful Calumet Baking Powder.
1 level teaspoon of salt.
2 rounding tablespoons butter or lard.
1/2 cup of milk.
3/4 cup of water.

Sift flour once, then measure, add salt and baking powder and sift three times, rub shortening in with fork or spoon, add milk and water, turn out on a well floured board and roll one inch thick, cut and bake in a quick oven about twelve to fifteen minutes.

And then when they come piping hot from the oven, light and fluffy and wholesome—butter and taste.

That's the Calumet test—always. Everything baked with Calumet must be as good—or a little better—than bakings made with other brands.

Calumet is moderate in price—economical in use. Your grocer knows—ask him.

20 ACCEPT CHRIST AS RESULT OF MEETINGS

SERVICES AT BAPTIST CHURCH CLOSED LAST EVENING WITH LOCKHART'S SERMON.

At the Baptist church last evening a good congregation witnessed the closing of the special meetings that have been in progress for the past two weeks. It has been a most successful meeting and the church and congregation have experienced a vital religious awakening. About 20 in all have decided to enter upon the Christian life in these meetings. The baptism scene which constituted a distinct service of the evening's meeting was most beautiful and impressive.

The sermon which came in the first part of the meeting was a most graphic and inspiring presentation of the temptations of Jesus. Rev. Lockhart's sermon was 'The Devil Interviewing Jesus,' in which he showed that while we may set aside 'the Devil of cloven hoof, forked tail, hairy body and horned head of medieval art, nevertheless, how can we interpret the wickedness of history and the present day so marvelously organized without seeing that there must be a master-hand behind the infamy. And this prince of perdition used upon Jesus, as upon us, all of his satanic arts in a supreme attempt to prostitute history's noblest personality to his own malignant ends.' Rev. Lockhart was formerly pastor of the First Baptist church of Traverse City, Mich., where he constantly spoke to large audiences. He is temporarily doing graduate work in the University of Chicago. He returned to Chicago this morning.

BOOM LOWDEN FOR U. S. SENATORSHIP

PLAN TO BRING HIM UP AS DARK HORSE AT SPRINGFIELD WEDNESDAY.

Under a Peoria dateline of Saturday, a staff correspondent has the following to say in the Chicago Sunday Tribune:

Frank O. Lowden, former congressman and candidate for governor in the deadlock convention of 1904, will be started as a senatorial candidate at Springfield Wednesday. The Lowden boom was sprung in Peoria tonight coincident with the republican roundup. Frankly, Col. Lowden's boosters here do not expect to see him elected Wednesday. They figure that Sherman, Lewis and Funk have been eliminated and they are ready to take advantage of any chance that may open.

They see this chance in a republican-democratic combination after the Washington inauguration, which combination might result in no less than the election of Roger C. Sullivan for the long term and Col. Lowden for the short term.

It is certain that a Sherman-Funk arrangement cannot go through Wednesday, judging by sentiment here, and probably not next week. The real big doings will be staged in Washington, Col. Lowden has been voted for during the deadlock. Senator Dailey and representative Butts of Peoria are figured for Lowden Wednesday.

The trustees of the Amboy Congregational church have been authorized by the members of the church to build a parsonage on a portion of the church grounds.

Action in the case of Wm. Jones (colored), held for an assault upon the person of Leon Scott has been indefinitely deferred to await the results of Scott's injuries.

Scott is at his home on West Third street under the care of a physician. He is at times delirious, but according to his physician, his condition is not serious.

Scott was injured last Thursday evening upon leaving the Ephraim Smith house on Sixth street by a thrown bottle and brick. Jones was held for the assault and is said to have admitted his guilt.

FRANCISCO I. MADERO.

Ex-President Madero was shot and killed in Mexico City by his guards while being taken from the palace to the federal prison.

ON WAY TO PRISON

sons following.

Shots were fired at the escort out the darkness. The rurales closed in and ordered the prisoners out of the car.

Guards Are Attacked.

Thirty of the guards surrounded the prisoners, while the remainder disposed themselves to resist an attack. About fifty men, some armed and some mounted, threw themselves upon the detachment guarding the cars and the exchange of shots lasted twenty minutes, when the attacking party fled. The dead bodies of Madero and Suarez were then found.

The body of Madero shows only one wound. A bullet entered the back of the head and emerged at the forehead.

The body of Suarez shows many wounds, entering from in front.

Of the male members of the Madero family only two are now in the capital. One is Francisco Madero, the father, who bitterly opposed his son's conducting a revolution in 1910 and rode across northern Mexico in an effort to overtake and dissuade him; the other is Ernesto Madero, the former minister of finance, an uncle, though only a year older than the late president.

Gustavo Madero, a brother, was obliged to submit to the fugitive law the day after the deposition of the president and was shot down in the arsenal.

Senora Madero and the two sisters of the ex-president, Mercedes and Angela, are at the Japanese legation. Not far from the penitentiary there are two small piles of stones, some twenty feet apart. They mark the spots where the men who a few days ago ruled Mexico had fallen.

Huerta's Official Statement.

"About 12 o'clock in the morning I issued a call for my cabinet to assemble," Lieutenant Colonel Mass declared for General Huerta. "In order to report to them that Madero and Suarez, who were held in the national palace, at the disposition of the secretary of war, were to be taken to the penitentiary, in accordance with orders.

"As a result of this decision, I had that establishment placed in charge of an army officer for its better security. When the automobile had traversed two-thirds of the distance to the penitentiary the party was attacked by an armed group. The escort immediately descended from the machine to offer resistance. Suddenly the group was augmented, and the prisoners tried to escape. An exchange of shots followed, in which two of the attacking party were killed and two wounded. Both prisoners were killed. The automobile was badly damaged.

"The president and cabinet have resolved that the affair be consigned to the military judicial authorities having to do with such attempts against military prisoners, such as were Madero and Suarez, so that they may make strict investigation with the direct intervention of the military prosecutor general.

"The minister of justice has asked, in view of the exceptional character of the case, that when their investigations are over, the prosecutor general of the republic may make further investigation.

"The government deprecates this event, but, wishing to attend to the urgent necessities of the public welfare, has asked the minister of justice to formulate a program for legal action against the prisoners for their several responsibilities, at the same time making an effort to have some of Madero's friends assist in finding a solution for this dangerous and difficult case.

"Filled with a desire to protect its affairs, as well as its prisoners, the president has appointed Col. Luis Valleseros, director of the penitentiary, giving him strict instructions to provide for any contingency.

"The government promises that society shall be fully satisfied as to the facts in this case.

"The commanders of the escort are now under arrest, and the facts recorded above have been ascertained in an effort to clear up this unhappy event."

RETURNS FROM TRIP.

Boyd Ethyre has returned from a short vacation, spent in Iowa.

Electric Light

Is recognized in this day and generation as the King of all artificial lights. Electric power in the house it is generally realized will assume the heaviest labor.

The spectacle of a new house completed nowadays without wiring is so rare as to be curious. It may be located miles away from supply lines. But it is wired just the same.

It isn't found necessary to expand on these facts. On the contrary we know the only reason why a house is not using electric service is that it happens not to be equipped for it.

The impression prevails that there are difficulties in wiring an old house. The notion is entirely wrong.

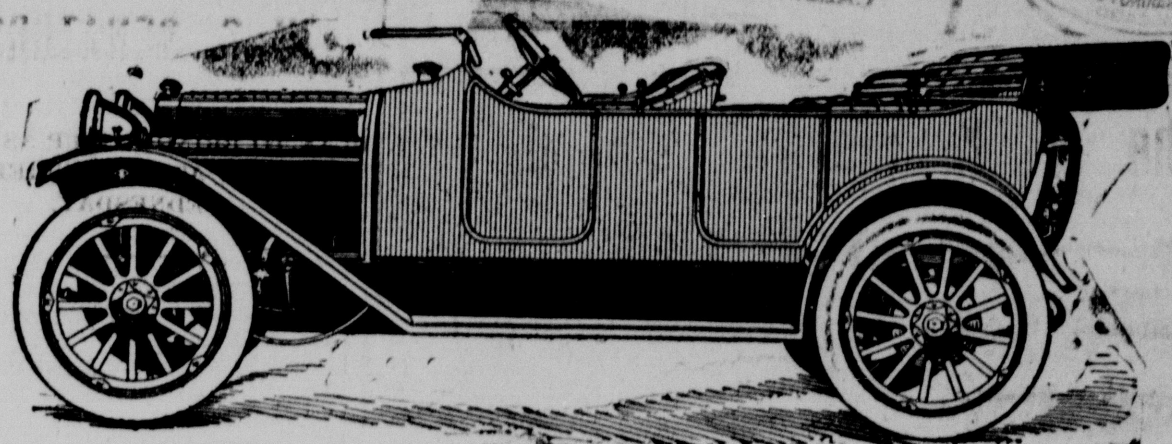

It's Perfectly Easy

Special wire for this particular purpose is made. There are half a dozen ways available to a skillful man to completely thread it through an old house without damage or annoyance to the occupants.

We employ these methods. And to make it available to any income we do the work at cost and spread the payments over a period of two years, collecting a little each month.

Illinois Northern
Utilities Co.*$1275 Buys This Remarkable
PAIGE 36

Gray and Davis Electric Starting and Lighting System, Silent Chain Driven Motor Gears, 116 inch Wheel Base, 34x4 inch Tires, Left-side Drive, Center Control, Cork Insert Clutch.

YOU KNOW a good deal about the unusual equipment of the Paige "36." You know it has the famous Gray & Davis Electric Starting and Lighting System. That point of itself is enough to mark the Paige as a distinctive value in its price field. You know it has the Bosch Magneto for ignition. No better to be had. Then think of all the rest of the equipment—ventilating windshield (built into the body), silk mohair top (tan lined), ton boot and curtains, Stewart revolving dial speedometer, 12-inch electric headlights, electric side and tail lamps, five demountable rims, robe and foot rails, extra tire irons, license bracket, and all the incidental equipment such as horn, pump, jack, tools, etc. The trimmings throughout are of heavy nickel.

BUT NOW WE WANT TO EMPHASIZE THIS ONE FACT—THAT THIS EXTRAORDINARY EQUIPMENT IS NOT ONE WHIT MORE EXTRAORDINARY THAN THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE CAR

It is generally conceded that we have accomplished a great work in being able to produce and sell the Paige "36," with such splendid equipment, for $1275.

It is a great work because, leaving aside any consideration of the equipment, the car itself is an extraordinary car.

The quality of the car, from any viewpoint, measures right up to the quality of the equipment. If anything above it.

This statement is easily provable. We want your primary consideration on the CAR, not the equipment.

The Paige motor has made the Paige reputation. For the Paige motor is right. We build our own motors in our own modern plant, and we could not build them more carefully or test them more accurately if we were building them for a $2500 car.

The Paige "36" motor is a powerful, quiet, economical 4-cylinder engine. It has a 5-inch stroke, with 4-inch bore. The cylinders of gray iron are cast in bloc, giving the utmost rigidity and perfect alignment, with the highest degree of simplicity.

We do not simply bore and ream our cylinders. We bore and ream them and then we season them for weeks. And after they are seasoned we grind them to a hair-line precision. It's a high-price practice but it contributes to Paige motor efficiency.

The connecting rods are drop-forged from high-carbon steel, and very long—10½ inches. These long connecting rods, together with the fact that the cylinders are off-set in the direction of rotation, reduce side-thrust to a minimum and eliminate unequal wear in the cylinder walls.

The heavy crankshaft is made of very strong, drop-forged and heat-treated steel and runs in three extra long bearings—front bearing 3 inches, center bearing 2½ inches, rear bearing 4 inches.

The Paige "36" motor is as quiet as the watch in your pocket. We believe it is as quiet as any motor ever built. Our chaindrive for camshaft and pump shaft help make it quiet.

The aluminum crank case is light and strong, as a crank case should be.

Paige "36" lubrication is a feature of this unusual car. In no other design of Paige "36" design do we feel greater pride. It is perfect and condan.

BEING THE HAPPENINGS OF A NIGHT IN RICHMOND IN THE SPRING OF 1865

THE PLAY BY WILLIAM GILLETTE; BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY ILLUSTRATIONS BY EDGAR BERT SMITH

"For me, my dear, else I shouldn't have opened it. You can read it, if you like."

"Has it been here all this time?" exclaimed Edith jealously.

"All this time. You will see what he says. This will be his last call; he has his orders to leave."

"Why, it's too ridiculous!" said the girl; "just as if the commission from the president wouldn't supersede everything else. It puts him at the head of the telegraph service. He will be in command of the department. He says it is a good-bye call, does he?"

She looked at the note again and laughed. "All the better, it will be that much more of a surprise. Now, mamma, don't you breathe a word about it, I want to tell him myself."

"But, Edith dear—I am sorry to criticize you—but I don't at all approve of your going to the president about this. It doesn't seem quite the proper thing for a young lady to interest herself so far—"

"But listen, mamma," and as she spoke the light went out of Miss Edith's face at her mother's grave and somewhat reproving aspect. "I couldn't go to the war department people. Mr. Arrellsford is there in one of the offices and ever since I refused him, you know how he has treated me! If I had applied for anything there, it would have been refused at once, and he would have got them to order Captain Thorne away right off. I know he would—why, that is where his orders came from!"

"But, my dear—"

"That is where they came from. Isn't it lucky I got that commission today. There's the bell; I wonder who it can be?" She stopped and listened while the door opened and Jonas, the butler, entered. "Is it Captain Thorne?" asked Edith eagerly.

"No, ma'am."

"Oh!"

"Is it another official, ma'am. He says he's from the president and he's got to see Miss Edith personally."

Jonas extended a card which, as he spoke, Edith took and glanced at it indifferently.

"Lieutenant Maxwell," she read. "Ask the gentleman in, Jonas," said Mrs. Varney.

"It's come," whispered Edith to her mother.

"Do you know who he is?"

"No—but he's from the president—it must be that commission."

"At this moment old Jonas ushered into the drawing room a very dashing young officer, handsome in face, gallant in bearing, and dressed in a showy and perfectly fitting uniform, which was quite a contrast to the worn habiliments of the men at the front. Mrs. Varney stepped forward a little, and Lieutenant Maxwell bowed low before her.

"Good evening, ma'am. Have I the honor of addressing Miss Varney?"

"I am Mrs. Varney, sir."

"Madam," said the Lieutenant, "I am very much afraid this looks like an intrusion on my part, but I come from the president, and he desires me to see Miss Varney personally."

"Anyone from the president could not be otherwise than welcome, sir. This is my daughter, Edith, let me present Lieutenant Maxwell."

The young Lieutenant, greatly impressed, bowed profoundly before her, and taking a large brown envelope from his belt, handed it to her.

"Miss Varney," he said, "the president directed me to deliver this into your hands, with his compliments. He is glad to be able to do this, he says, not only at your request, but because of your father and for the merits of the gentleman in question."

"Oh, thank you," cried the girl, taking the envelope.

"Won't you be seated, Lieutenant Maxwell?" said Mrs. Varney.

"Yes, do," urged the girl, holding the envelope pressed very tightly to her side.

"Nothing would please me so much, ladies," answered the Lieutenant, "but I must go back to the president's house right away. I'm on duty this evening. Would you mind writing me off a line or two, Miss Varney, just to say you have received the communication?"

"Why, certainly, you want a receipt. I'll go upstairs to my desk; it won't take a moment. And could I put in how much I thank him for his kindness?"

"I am sure he would be more than pleased," smiled Lieutenant Maxwell, as Edith left the room and hastened up the stairs.

"We haven't heard so much cannonading today, Lieutenant," said Mrs. Varney. "Do you know what it means?"

"I don't think they are quite positive, ma'am, but they can't help looking for a violent attack to follow."

"I don't see why it should quiet down before an assault."

"Well, there is always a calm before a storm," said the Lieutenant. "It might be some signal, or it might be they are moving their batteries to open on some special point of attack."

They are trying every way to break through our defenses, you know."

"It's very discouraging. We can't seem to drive them back this time."

"We're holding them where they are, though," said Maxwell proudly. "They'll never get in unless they do it by some scurvy trick; that's where the danger lies. We are always looking out for it, and—"

At this moment Edith Varney re-entered the room. She had left her hat upstairs with the official-looking envelope, and had taken time to glance at a mirror and then to thrust a red rose in her dark hair. The impressionable young Lieutenant thought she looked prettier than ever.

"Lieutenant Maxwell," she said, extending a folded paper, "here is your receipt."

The butler's words to some one in the hall interrupted her further speech.

"Will you just kindly step his way, sir," she heard Jonas say, and as Edith turned she found herself face to face with Captain Thorne!

CHAPTER III.

Orders to Captain Thorne.

On the sleeves of Captain Thorne's coat the insignia of a captain of Confederate artillery were displayed; his uniform was worn, soiled, and ill-fitting, giving honorable evidence of hard service; his face was pale and thin and showed signs of recent illness, from which he had scarcely recovered. In every particular he was a marked contrast to Lieutenant Maxwell.

"Miss Varney," he said, bowing low. "We were expecting you," answered Edith, giving her hand to Thorne. "Here's Captain Thorne, mamma!"

Mrs. Varney shook hands with him graciously while her daughter turned once more to the other man, with the

"Thank you; I shall never forget what they have been to me."

"Lieutenant Maxwell is going, mamma," said Edith.

"So soon! Please excuse me a moment, captain. I am very sorry you have to hurry away, Lieutenant; we shall hope for the pleasure of seeing you again, if your duties permit."

"I shall certainly avail myself of your invitation, if you will allow me." He saluted Captain Thorne. "Good evening, sir."

Thorne, of course, returned the courteous salute of his junior.

"Lieutenant Maxwell," he said pleasantly, as Mrs. Varney followed Lieutenant Maxwell into the hall.

"Now remember, you are to come some time when duty doesn't call you away so soon," she said, as he bowed himself out.

"Trust me not to forget that, Mrs. Varney," said the Lieutenant, as he disappeared on the porch.

Captain Thorne and Edith were left alone. The girl stepped over to a small table on which stood a vase of roses, and with somewhat nervous hands, she busied herself arranging them. The young officer watched her in silence for a little while, the moments tense with emotion.

"Shall I see Mrs. Varney again?" he began at last.

"Oh, I suppose so, but not now. I heard her go upstairs to Howard."

"How is he?"

"Desperately ill."

"I am sorry."

"Yes," said the girl.

"I have a very little time to stay and—"

"Oh—not long?" asked Edith.

"No, I am sorry to say."

"Well, do you know," she looked at him archly, "I believe you will have more time than you really think you have. It would be odd if it came out that way, wouldn't it?" she continued, as she played with the flower in her hand.

"Yes, but it won't come out that way," said Thorne, as he stepped closer to her.

"You don't know," she faltered, as Thorne drew the flower from her and took her hand in his. They stood there a moment, and she did not draw her hand away. "Well, it makes no difference how soon you are going away; you can sit down in the meantime if you want to."

"It is hardly worth while," he said; "my time is so short."

"You would better," interrupted the girl; "I have a great many things to say to you."

"Have you?" he asked, sitting down on the little sofa by her side in compliance with her invitation.

"Yes."

"But I have only one thing to say to you—Miss Varney and—that is—Thorne took her other hand in both of his—"good-bye."

Very different words had trembled on his lips, as he knew and as the girl knew.

"But I don't really think you will have to say that, Captain Thorne," said Edith slowly.

"I know I will."

"Then," said Edith more softly, "it will be because you want to say it."

"No," said Thorne, resolutely and of his own motion releasing her hands, which she had allowed him to hold without remonstrance; "it will be because I must."

He rose to his feet and took up his hat from the table as if the thing being settled, he had only to go. But the girl observed with secret joy that he made no other effort at departure.

"Oh, you think you must, do you, Captain Thorne?" said Edith, looking up at him mischievously. "You are a very wise person, but you don't know all that I know."

"I think that is more than likely, Miss Varney, but won't you tell me some of the things that you know that I don't, so that I can approach your knowledge in that respect?"

"I wouldn't mind telling you one thing, and that is that it is very wrong for you to think of leaving Richmond now."

"Oh, but you don't know."

"Yes, I do."

"Well, what do you know?" asked Thorne curiously.

"Whatever you were going to say. Most likely it was that there's something or other I don't know about, but I do know this. You were sent here to recover, and you haven't nearly had enough time for it yet."

"I do look as if a high wind would blow me away, don't I?" he laughed.

"No matter how you look, you ought not to go. You are just making fun of it, as you always do of everything. No matter, you can have all the fun you like, but the whole thing is settled; you are not going away at all, you are going to stay here," she concluded with most decided but winning emphasis.

"Oh, I'm not going? Well, that is quite a change for me," said Thorne composedly. He laid his hat back on the table and came closer to Edith. "Perhaps you wouldn't mind telling me what I am going to do."

"I don't mind at all, and it is this. You see, I have been to see—I am almost afraid to tell you."

"Don't tell me," said the man with sudden seriousness, laying aside all his pleasantry, "because it can't be true. I have my orders, and I am leaving tonight."

"Where—to Petersburg—to the front?"

"We can't always tell where orders will take us," he said evasively, again sitting down beside her on the lounge.

He could scarcely tear himself away from her, from the delicious yet painful emotion aroused by her presence. He ought to have gone long since, yet he was with her, as he supposed, for the last time. Surely he might indulge himself a little. He loved her so desperately, so hopelessly.

"But listen," said the girl; "supposing there were other orders, orders from a higher authority, appointing you to duty here?"

"It would not make any difference."

"You don't mean you would go in spite of them?" cried the girl in sudden alarm.

Thorne looked at her gravely and nodded his head.

"But if it were proved that your first orders were a mistake—"

She stretched out her hand toward him, which Thorne clasped closely again.

"But it wasn't a mistake, and I must go," he said slowly, rising to his feet once more, but still holding her hand.

"Is it something dangerous?" asked the girl apprehensively.

"Oh, well, enough to make it interesting."

But Edith did not respond to his well simulated humor. She drew her hand away, and Thorne fancied with a leap of his heart that she did it with reluctance. She began softly:

"Don't be angry with me if I ask you again about your orders. I must know."

"But why?" asked Thorne curiously.

"No matter, tell me."

"I can't do that. I wish I could," he answered with a slight sigh.

"You needn't," said the girl triumphantly; "I do know."

The captain started and, in spite of his control, a look of dismay and apprehension flitted across his face as the girl went on:

"They're sending you on some mission where death is almost certain. They will sacrifice your life, because they know you are fearless and will do anything. There is a chance for you to stay here, and be just as much use, and I am going to ask you to take it. It isn't your life alone—there are others to think of—and—that's why I ask you. It may not sound well, perhaps I ought not—you won't understand but you—"

As she spoke she rose to her feet, confronting him, while she impulsively thrust out her hand toward him again. Once more he took that beloved hand in his own, holding it close against him. Burning avowals sprang to his lips, and the color flamed into her face as she stood motionless and expectant, looking at him. She had gone as far as a modest woman might. Now the initiative was his. She could only wait.

"No," said the man at last, by the exercise of the most iron self-control and repression, "you shall not have this against me, too."

Edith drew closer to him, leaving her hand in his as she placed her other on his shoulder. She thought she knew what he would have said. And love gave her courage. The frankness of war was in the air. If this man left her now, she might never see him again. She was a woman, but she could not let him go without an effort.

"Against you! What against you? What do you mean?" she asked softly.

The witchery of the hour was upon him, too, and the sweetness of her presence. He knew he had but to speak to receive his answer, to summon the fortress and receive the surrender. Her eyes dropped before his passionately searching look, her color came and went, her bosom rose and fell. She thought he must certainly hear the wild beating of her heart. He pressed her hands closely to his breast for a moment, but quickly pulled himself together again.

"I must go," he said hoarsely; "my business is—elsewhere. I ought never to have seen you or spoken to you, but I had to come to this house and you were here, and how could I help it? Oh—I couldn't for a whole—it's only you in this—"

He stopped and thrust her hands away from him blindly and turned away. As there was a God above him he would not do it. "Your mother—I would like to say good-bye to her."

"No, you are not going," cried the girl desperately, playing her last card. "Listen, they need you in Richmond; the president told me so himself—your orders are to stay here. You are to be given a special commission on the war department telegraph service, and you—"

"No, no, I won't take it—I can't take it, Miss Varney."

"Can't you do that much for me?" said the girl with winning sweetness, and again she put out her hands to him.

"It is for you that I will do nothing of the kind," he answered quickly; "if you ever think of me again after—well, when I am gone, remember that I refused."

"But you can't refuse; it is the president's desire, it is his order, you have got to obey. Wait a moment, I left it upstairs. I will fetch it for you and you will see."

She turned toward the door.

"No," said Thorne, "don't get it, I won't look at it."

"But you must see what it is. It puts you at the head of everything. You have entire control. When you see it I know you will accept it. Please wait."

"No, Miss Varney, I can't—"

"Oh, yes, you can," cried Edith, who would hear no denial as she ran swiftly toward the door.

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE—"CASCARETS."

What Glasses Are to Weak Eyes, Cascarets Are to Weak Bowels—A 10-Cent Box Will Truly Amaze You.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

"But why?" asked Thorne curiously.

"No matter, tell me."

"I can't do that. I wish I could," he answered with a slight sigh.

HISTORY OF MADERO

Short Sketch of the Ex-President of Mexico.

Main Points in Dead Leader's Career Up to the Time He Entered the Arena of Politics.

New York, Feb. 24.—Francisco Indalecio Madero was born October 18, 1873, at the hacienda del Rosario, near Parras, in the state of Coahuila, the son of Francisco Indalecio Madero.

After a short time at a private school at Parras, he was sent to a Jesuit college at Saltillo, where he remained until he was fourteen years of age. The following year he attended St. Mary's school at Emmetsburg, Md. When sixteen years old he entered the University of California to study agriculture.

He studied only one year in the American university, the entire Madero family moving to Europe in 1889 to escape a threatened political uprising.

Young Madero spent six years in France and took a thorough course in the school of commerce at Paris.

Returning with his family to Mexico in 1895, he took charge of his father's cotton plantations and remained a successful planter until four years ago. In 1902 he married the daughter of a Mexico City lawyer. His subsequent movement is history.

Don Jose Pino Suarez was governor of Yucatan before he was elevated to the vice-presidency by the votes of the people. He was elected by the scant majority of 45 votes. Senor de La Barra ran second to him and Dr. Vasquez Gomez third. The influence of Madero was responsible for his election, which was in doubt for some days, his candidacy having been unpopular.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Six thousand Montenegrins and 4,000 Servians perished at Scutari in the last battle between the allied troops and the Turkish forces, according to an official dispatch from Constantinople, received at the Turkish embassy. The town of Bardan was retaken by the Turks. The Ottoman war office advises that the Montenegrins do not seem to be in a position to continue the war.

At Bulair there had been no change, the dispatch said, and at Tchatalja two attacks by the allied forces had been repulsed by the Turks on the outskirts of Kadikeny.

Constantinople, Feb. 24.—A Bulgarian military aeroplane, while reconnoitering over the fortress of Adrianople, was hit by a Turkish shell and fell inside the lines. It was piloted by a Russian officer, Lieutenant Nikolas, who was made a prisoner by the Turks. The wireless report from the Turkish commander does not say whether Nikolas was injured.

W. Walford, blacksmith, 843 W. Walnut Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "I am glad to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. I had quite a little trouble from my back and kidneys. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and when I stooped, there was pain across my loins. My back ached at times. I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they made me entirely better. The pains left and the action of my kidneys was regulated." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. NEWS SHOCKS WILSON

President-Elect Regrets Slaying of Mexican Executive.

Governor Refuses to Comment on Gravity of Situations in Trouble Rent Republic.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 24.—President-elect Wilson was shocked to hear the news that Madero and Suarez had been killed in Mexico City.

"It's too bad," he sighed, when he first learned of the shooting. He refrained from comment, saying he would maintain his policy of silence until he had taken office.

While nothing has come from Mr. Wilson to indicate what his attitude will be, he has kept himself consistently informed of developments by a careful scrutiny of the news dispatches, displaying at all times a keen interest in the progress of events in the trouble ridden country.

Mr. Wilson, it is known, had hoped from the first that Mexico's problems would find amicable settlement without the least interference from the United States. He realizes the gravity of developments, however, and is studying the situation most earnestly.

It is even declared among some of his friends that he may hasten the announcement of his cabinet so he can avail himself at once of their counsel on a situation that will require the immediate attention of the new administration.

Mr. Wilson said that he had received no communication directly or indirectly from officials in the Taft administration concerning Mexico.

PLOT TO MURDER SULZER

Young Man Claims to Have Overheard Assassination Story.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 24.—A preliminary inquiry into an alleged plot to assassinate Governor Sulzer has been authorized by the governor. It was learned here. A young man came to the capitol with his head bandaged and told how he had been knocked unconscious by two men who discovered him listening to their discussion of plans to kill Mr. Sulzer. The young man disappeared after telling his story to Pardon Clerk O. L. Potter, who gave him a letter to the commissioner of public safety.

FALL 1,000 FEET AND LIVE

Aeroplane Containing Two Men Plunges Into Ocean at Palm Beach.

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 24.—An immense crowd on the bathing beach saw a government aeroplane of the coast defense type, containing Frank Coffyn and Lieutenant Ellison, turn a quick circle in midair, pause an instant and then plunge a thousand feet into the ocean about two miles out. The machine appeared absolutely vertical as it rushed toward the water but a couple of hundred feet up straightened out and hit the ocean at an acute angle. Neither man was injured.

OPERATE ON CARMEN SYLVA

Remove Cataract From Eyes of Famous Queen of Roumania.

Berlin, Feb. 24.—Professor Landolt of Strasburg performed at Bucharest a preliminary operation for cataract on Carmen Sylva, queen of Roumania. The failure of her sight is said to be due to too much sewing and literary work by artificial light. The queen's general health is good.

San Francisco, Feb. 24.—After being "held up" for $20 at the ferry for automobile space on the boat she had to catch, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt appeared before 1,902 convicts at San Quentin prison in a production of "One Christmas Night," written by her son.

SUGAR

The American Sugar Refining Company has three principal factories, Franklins, Molineur's and Havemeyer & Elder. The factories are situated at Philadelphia, New York and New Orleans. Any factory may and does use any one of the brands owned by the trust. The sugar is put in plain barrels or bags at the factories and branded as the buyer wishes it when he orders it sent out. This town is a great believer in H. & E. brand. This brand can be had from any of the trust refineries no difference where situated.

You can never see the trust brands having on them Pure Cane Sugar because they use either cane or beet according to the cheaper in the raw market. The trust charges more for their sugars, that is, their known brands, usually about 15c per hundred pounds. Of course they want you to think it is better than others; you would not pay the difference in price if you did not believe it was. That is the first object of all trusts, to have the people believe their goods are better, then you are willing to pay more for them.
